

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates.

America is such a large and prosperous country that there should be room for more competition on our common airwaves, not less. Alternatives to the monolithic and monotonous media of today can be found on the internet, but such viewpoints get drowned out by powerful media outlets that lack any proper check and balance to their monopolistic tactics.
